Importance of Integrity

Integrity is how somebody lives their life. Everyday in this life we are faced with choices that we can only answer. We dictate how we live our own lives, and we are defined by the way we run them. Integrity does the right things as opposed to the wrong thing. People can have their pride, their integrity, if nothing else. For some people, it's something that means a lot and then nothing to others. The good people in this world are the ones who highly value their integrity, and the opposite is true for those who do not appreciate their integrity.

We would have a much safer world if we were all forced to comply. No one is pressuring us to do anything, and that's the point. Only one person can shape our personal integrity: ourselves. Nobody can control our integrity. They may try to sway it and they do it almost daily, but unless we allow it to be changed, they cannot change it. Integrity is absolutely vital to a community. If a cohesive culture as a whole has no values, it's going to be a very poor society. The people in it will not flourish, the children will grow up badly, and the cycle of immorality will continue. It's a culture without integrity, it brings the entire world around it. We tend to define this as the "bad part of the city".

Integrity on a college campus is very important. College is synonymous with the word "freedom". You live alone, and the school or police are the only people you answer. So it is up to you to make the decisions that are right for your life. Because there are choices to be made every single day in school, where you stay with your family and they all could affect your life. Without integrity on a college campus, you have lawlessness, because there are very few consequences in most situations.

The most important quality that you can ever cultivate is the sense of honesty that will enrich every part of your life. You will do more to ensure your success and happiness in life than anything else.

making the commitment to become a totally honest person.

Integrity is a value such as persistence, courage and understanding. Living by those values that make up your character and personality is your choice of values and resolve. And all your other values are enhanced by integrity. How well you live up to the values that are most important to you determines the quality of the person you are. Integrity is the qualities that keeps your values locked and makes you live in accordance with them.

Credibility is the character's base. A person who has credibility in every area of his or her life also has an unblemished personality. Developing your character is one of the most important activities you can participate in. And one of the best ways to develop your character is to do the same things a truly honest person would do in any aspect of his or her life.

You first have to be completely honest with yourself to be totally honest with others. You've got to be true to yourself. You've got to be true to the very best you have. Only a person who ~~lives~~ lives a life with the highest values and virtues consistently is a person who actually lives a life of integrity. You can't be wrong to anyone else if you're always honest and true to yourself.

The mark of people with high integrity is that in everything they do they always do the highest quality of work. We are the people who in everything they do are always totally honest with themselves, and on every occasion they aspire for excellent work. Highly integrity people realize that all they do is state who they are as an individual.

The universal law of Attraction states that you unsurprisingly attract people and circumstances in harmony with your prevailing thoughts and values into your life.

This means that because of the person you are everything in your life that you have attracted. If there's something you're not happy with in your life, relationship, or work you need to start changing the person you're, so you'll stop attracting those people and situations into your life.

In your ability to stick to the ideals that are most important to you, your honesty is personified.

Making promises is simple, but often very difficult to keep. But it's an act of integrity every time you keep a promise you've made, which in turn strengthens your character.

You will find that every part of your life will improve as you act with integrity in everything you do. You will start attracting in your life the best people and situations. In everything you do, you'll become an outstanding person as well as a star.
